A VILLAINOUS ARTICLE.

Some time ago we copied an article on the Sproule case, from a San Francisco journal, which contained so many lies and was so amazingly ridiculous that we did not consider it necessary to offer any contradiction or correction. The very strength of the poison constituted the antidote. But the Alta's article, grossly malignant and immeasurably untruthful as it undoubtedly was, proves to have been calm, argumentative and dispassionate in comparison to the ravings of the Chicago Herald. The reproduction of the former article in our columns was taken advantage of by a contemporary, and an effort was made to induce the Chief Justice to take cognizance of its publication in THE TIMES by instituting proceedings for libel. It was obvious to every person that our only object in giving the article publicity was to show the people of the Province, who are familiar with all the facts of the Kootenay murder, how unfair and untruthful the so-called friends of the murderer could be in discussing the crime and its consequences. In copying the following villainous production, it is surely not necessary for us—who believe that SPROULE was righteously punished—to say that every line—every sentence—is an infamous lie:

"The execution of Robert E. Sproule in Victoria, British Columbia, can only be regarded as a judicial butchery and an act of unmistakable hostility to the American people. He was convicted on the testimony of two men who have acknowledged that they perjured themselves, and evidently died a victim to a conspiracy on the part of certain English miners who were anxious to avail themselves of the rich discoveries that he had made in far-off Kootenay. He has now been hanged for a crime which it is morally certain that he did not commit, and to the monstrous injustice of the affair is to be added a contemptuous disregard of the kindly offices of a neighboring nation. The Judge who condemned Sproule has shown himself to be the most conspicuous scoundrel who ever disgraced a bench on this continent. Charged by his fellow citizens with having a corrupt interest in the plot to profit by Sproule's death, he has, since the conviction of the victim, retired from office, and, if the suspicion attaching to him is well founded, he will now devote himself, probably, to a closer investigation of the discoveries which Sproule is said to have made in the north."

Comment on the above is surely unnecessary. The article shows to what length some portions of the press of the United States is prepared to go in cases of this kind. The guilt or innocence of a condemned criminal, apparently, depends upon his nationality, when sentenced by a Canadian court. And when an influential Chicago daily paper publishes the above, it is not very surprising that more insignificant organs nearer home, although better informed as to the facts, should be equally frenzied in their virulence and mendacity.

RATES DEMORALIZED.

The Northern and Canadian Pacific Make Victoria a Common Point for "Cut Rates."

The action of the Canadian Pacific in making a deep cut in passenger rates between this city and Victoria, B. C., says a St. Paul paper, has put the transcontinental lines in the United States on the defensive, and aroused considerable hostility to the Canadian Pacific. At a late meeting the Chicago Railroad Association passenger department refused to adopt this cut as a basing rate from Chicago, and urged protection against the demoralization of rates made by the Canadian Pacific without cause or pretext. General Passenger Agent Fee, of the Northern Pacific has addressed a letter to trunk line managers asking them to unite against this demoralization. He says: "The only point of importance on Puget Sound, to which the Canadian Pacific is a natural route, even from Canadian points in proximity to its own line, and by a stretch of courtesy and imagination, from points in the United States contiguous to the Canadian border is Victoria, B. C. The legitimate business to this point is comparatively small, and the east-bound business by which the full power of the Canadian Pacific to reciprocate any and all favors must be measured is still smaller. For the sake of the slight and enforced reciprocations to be expected of the Canadian Pacific on east-bound business from Victoria, the American lines would perpetrate a gross injustice on the Northern Pacific and other transcontinental lines, besides reducing their own revenue by adopting reduced rates to Victoria, that would necessarily have to be applied to interior points in Oregon, Washington Territory, Idaho and Montana, to and from which the business is very large. The proposed reduction in through rates will have no appreciable result in increasing travel. It is neither provoked by competition nor by any other apparent reason, except a desire to interfere with the existing condition of things, regardless of the sacrifice involved of legitimate revenue without any commensurate benefit to the agency by which this result is produced.

Adam Darling, who suddenly left Montreal, is believed to be in Kansas City. His friends have known for years that his business was going behind, and that it would not justify his manner of living. It is understood the largest creditors are Meechan Bros., of Staffordshire, England. The Bank of Montreal is considerably interested.

In Baddock, Nova Scotia, a few nights since, a can of gunpowder, to which was attached a lighted fuse, was thrown through the kitchen window of W. H. Watson, a prominent man who had taken a leading part in liquor prosecutions lately. The can did not explode. Mrs. Watson and four small children were the only occupants of the kitchen at the time.

INTERIOR PROGRESS.

Branch Lines from the Canadian Pacific Railway Advocated.

A Railway Proposed to far-off Cariboo's Rich Mines.

Much has been written lately to promote the building of a line of railway into the Cariboo mines, and the interests that would be affected and the benefits to be derived therefrom. It may be truly said, however, that the subject is one whose features cannot all be described within a small space, as the conditions are at first sight somewhat complex and involved. As to what the duty of the Dominion government towards the province should be in the furtherance of this project, the arguments for and against are various and require to be well weighed to be properly appreciated and made clear. The Dominion government, by giving grants of land and money to branch lines of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, has established precedents that cannot elsewhere be consistently withheld. As some of those grants have been as high as 6,400 acres per mile free of cost, it will be well to enquire how far such a grant would go towards the construction of a road in that section of country. Now it can be proved from actual contracts that $10,000 per mile will do all the grading, bridging and track laying of a prairie road, through a moderately undulating country; $4000 per mile more will provide for the rails and the ties, making a total of $14,000 per mile. The value of these lands may be very moderately set down as $3 per acre; bearing in mind that they are in blocks, in some cases distant from the line and not directly dependent upon the construction of the road for a rapid rise in their value. It will appear therefore that these lines can be built within the government grant and leave a balance. But the revenue derivable by the Dominion government from customs and excise on account of the development of the country, caused by the construction of such lines, bears no proportion to that which would accrue from the development of a country already tolerably well occupied, with with great and immediate prospects of consumption at one end. In the first case a prohibitive liquor law is in force; the community of farmers is largely self-supporting and the duty upon farm implements principally manufactured in other portions of the Dominion is of course nil. In the second case there is no prohibitive liquor law; the habits of the people are generous, their necessities are largely supplied from the United States markets. They are only self-supporting in the matter of fish and beef cattle. They require mining machinery, salt and other articles for chlorination, besides all those luxuries that precedent has amply proved that no mining community will be without, so long as the ground will give up gold enough to pay for them. Truly enough British Columbia and the provinces east of the Rocky Mountains have been put up by nature on very dissimilar scales; but the subjugation of nature to the arts of man in British Columbia means wealth for that province and the Dominion also that the other provinces need not envy, for the prosperity of British Columbia means increasing trade with the provinces further east for every measure of help that British Columbia may receive. It has been well and truly pointed out by excellent American mining authorities that the same backbone of wealth now being developed by American and foreign capital in the mountains of California and Alaska exists in British Columbia; by all indications not to the same, but even a greater extent. There need be no reason to fear that the prospects of British Columbia in the near future are not as bright as were those of California forty years ago. Who would have the hardihood to say that a development of prosperity analagous to that of California, if the same were initiated in British Columbia by wise and patriotic legislation, would not lead to immense and general benefit of the whole Dominion?

THE MINING RESOURCES OF CANADA

as they appear best in Cariboo need only be seen to be appreciated, and in this connection it may be said, it is a pity that they have not been more seen by those whose intelligent appreciation might bring reward to the toils of the hardy pioneer, but for whose courage and consummate skill British Columbia would not have advanced to the position that to day she holds. There is not wanting precedent to prove that government mines, worked for the benefit of the commonwealth, have yielded large returns to the State that had the enterprise to work them. Reasoning from analogy it would be safe to say that a wise government railway policy in British Columbia would bring a similar happy result. There is wealth enough hidden, not too deeply, in the mountains of British Columbia to employ the restless element of the surplus population of the other provinces, and make the Dominion government a handsome present besides. Will the general government assist the province to help herself, and help the Dominion as well, and will the province let the Dominion government see that she is willing to help herself, as far as she can? The moral support of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company will prove a tower of strength to the province of British Columbia, for the company is

PROVIDENT OF ITS OWN INTERESTS.

By the WEEKLY TIMES of November 5th, it appears that the total tea importation to the United States last year was 68,000,000 lbs.; to which must be added $325,000 freight money for silks and other merchandise. Assuming now that this freight was transported by four transcontinental lines (counting out the Pacific Mail S. S. Co. altogether), and that each of these lines with its extension or connections with the Atlantic seaboard was 3,600 miles in length, and that this tea was transported for, say, 2 cents per ton per mile, or $3.60 per 100 lbs. for the whole distance, it would allow each one of those roads to earn $193 per mile per year. Not a very munificent return for a large corporation, but enough to prove that no transcontinental line can afford to neglect its local interests, being the point whose proof seems to be of importance in the present emergency. The Canadian Pacific Railway Co. are deeply interested in the development of the upper country in British Columbia and the Cariboo mines, and they will be ready to back up any solid move made in this direction. Let the Dominion members, the local government and the press put their levers into the political capstan and heave with united action and the result will not be doubtful. "Union is strength" and a good, simultaneous, pull all together will turn up the first sod of the Cariboo railway and thereafter the richest province in the Dominion of Canada.—Com.

At the Bruce assizes the jury brought in a verdict granting one McIntosh, of Southampton, an injunction against a neighbor named Harrison, restraining him from keeping bees. Harrison has 80 hives and his bees became a nuisance. The judge said the case was a novel one and he could not grant an injunction but would reserve it for the full court.

NORTHERN ALASKA.

Important Discoveries Reported to have been Made by Lieut. Stoney's Expedition.

A Far Off and a Cold Country—Interesting Particulars Concerning It.

A Washington special says the Secretary of the Navy has received the official report of Lieutenant George M. Stoney, showing the results of the Northern Alaska exploring expedition commanded by him. The report is dated Ounalaska, Sept. 16th. After reporting the arrival of the party on the 15th of that month, he states that it was found necessary to sell the steamer Explorer, used by the party, for $2,000 at St. Michael's, as it was impossible either to tow it to San Francisco or to leave it at St. Michael's. He says: "The past winter was specially severe, but passed without accidents or sickness to the party. The lowest temperature recorded was seventy degrees below zero. The house at Fort Cosmos was very comfortable, no suffering from cold or from lack of food was experienced, except in the sledging expeditions."

The following, Lieut. Stoney writes, is a synopsis of the work accomplished:—"Accurate meteorological observations, magnetic dip, ice records, all phenomena, etc., were observed

AT FORT COSMOS.

During December, accompanied by Ensign Howard, I made a sleighing expedition to the north and west and passed over many miles of unexplored country. The headwaters of the No-To Aid or Inland river were discovered. During January and February Passed Assistant Engineer Zane, accompanied by George Socoloff (United States) made a very successful and creditable sleighing expedition to St. Michael's and return. He sleighed over 1,900 miles, part of which had never been crossed before, and made a thorough survey of the country. Mr. Zane is the first white man who had made or attempted the trip. During January I sleighed over the Selewik lake country. Discovered that the Selewik river was of considerable extent and passed over many miles of new country. During March Ensign Read sleighed over part of the Putnam river valley, making some important discoveries, the most notable being a hot spring. During the latter part of February I started on a sleighing expedition to the north and east. My intention was to cross Northern Alaska to the Arctic ocean if possible. Most of the country crossed was uninhabitable, and, there being little game, I was short of food at times. I reached the limit of the mountains and found the head waters of a large river running to the north. Beyond this point are found until late in the spring. For days I have been dependent upon the country for food. The natives could not be induced to go farther. Large offers were made them, but they said no; that if they went there they would starve, but this, however, I doubt. These natives said later that when the river broke and the reindeer, their principal food, moved to the north, they would take me to the Arctic. They also stated that some of them went that route every year. The season was now so advanced that had I succeeded in reaching the ocean my retreat would have been cut off by the melting of the snow, which would have separated me from my command until late in the summer. Most of these natives had never seen a white man before. I found them like all Esquimaux, very friendly. Seeing the feasibility of making the trip and not being able to wait and go with them himself, I decided to get back to headquarters as soon as possible. I made arrangements with the natives still further up this river and nearer Fort Cosmos to take two white men to the ocean. By a forced march, with some days not five hours' rest, I reached the fort April 8th.

"Ensigns Howard in command and F. J. Price (C. M.) were detailed to make the trip. April 12th Ensign Howard and party left the fort with one month's provisions.

HE MADE A FORCED MARCH

and reached these natives before the snow melted, accompanying them to the coast, which was reached June 25th, sixty miles eastward of Point Barrow. At this point he was detained by the ice until July 12th. He reached Point Barrow July 16th, where he found some white men stationed there for the purpose of trading and whaling. On August 13th Ensigns Howard and Price re-embarked. Captain Healy was informed of Mr. Howard's trip, when he communicated with my party and was asked to pick him up. Mr. Howard made many important discoveries. He found a large river flowing to the north, and upon its waters he drifted to the Arctic. He was for several days upon the Colville river and found its head waters. Mr. Howard deserves great credit for his work and the judgment displayed. He had to take Esquimaux food and life for three months, sometimes short of food, and underwent extreme hardships and hard work. During my northern trip many important discoveries were made. Large, extensive lakes were found all through Arctic Alaska. June 10 the ice in Putnam river broke, and I immediately moved my party to the coast. I triangulated out the Putnam and the Selewik rivers, rounded out Hotham Inlet and Selewik lake and made an expedition up the No-To Aik river. By the different sledging expeditions we crossed the entire territory of Alaska between Norton sound and the Arctic ocean to the north, all of which, except near the Yukon, had never been crossed by white men before. The Bear will be detained in Alaska waters until October for the purpose of protecting the seal fisheries; hence I do not expect to reach San Francisco until in October."

PRINCE WALDEMAR

To be New Ruler of Bulgaria—The Sobranje to Elect Him by Acclamation.

SOFIA, Nov. 10.—The Sobranje at a secret session last evening, and after a debate, which lasted three hours, decided to elect Prince Waldemar, the third son of the King of Denmark, as a successor to Prince Alexander on the throne of Bulgaria. Prince Waldemar is 28 years old.

At to-morrow morning's session of the Sobranje, Premier Rodosloff will propose Prince Waldemar as a candidate for the throne of Bulgaria and the Sobranje will elect him by acclamation and appoint a commission of five to officially convey the decision to the Prince.

Branoff, Prefect of Sofia, has resigned. His dismissal had been demanded by General Kaulbars, because he had ejected a Russian subject from the Sofia Council Chamber. The Prefect at once offered to resign, but General Kaulbars insisted that the government dismiss him.

LATER.

A session of the Sobranje to elect a successor to Prince Alexander was held this morning, and was not deferred till to-morrow as was expected. The Prime Minister proposed the name of Prince Waldemar, when the whole assembly arose in a body and elected Waldemar by acclamation. The public in the galleries did not participate in the enthusiasm manifested by the Deputies.

PARIS, Nov. 10.—Minister Goblet has notified the French Academy of his approval of the Academy's acceptance of Chantilly, the gift of the Duc D'Aumale. It is expected the question of the recall of the Duc D'Aumale will be discussed by the cabinet. President Grevy personally favors the recall.

THE POPE AND HIS LIBERTIES.

SCHOOL TRUSTEES.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of School Trustees was held last evening in the Police Court room. Present: Messrs. Hayward, McMicking, Walker and Dr. Milne.

In the absence of Mr. Higgins, Chairman, Dr. Milne was voted to the chair.

The minutes of former meeting were read and adopted.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From A. Innes, stating that his tender for coal included screened Wellington coal at $7 per ton. Received and filed.

From J. N. Muir, M. D., head master of High School, enclosing report for past month, and stating that there was a leak in the roof of the school building and that geese are still permitted to roam over the school grounds. Received and fixed, the matter of the geese nuisance being referred to the city barrister to ascertain if an action does not lie against the owners.

A communication from Mr. R. Offerhaus, stating that the net proceeds of the two entertainments to provide funds for prizes had netted $212.62½. Mr. Walker, from the committee on entertainment, reported to the same effect. Communication and report received and filed and thanks of the board tendered to the teachers for the manner in which they had done their work in connection with the entertainment.

The usual monthly reports from the teachers were presented. They showed an aggregate attendance of 928.27, being an average to each teacher of 48.85. The aggregate is 11.81 less than during the former months, which is attributed to the wet weather.

Accounts were read from: Jacob Sehl, $9; B Jamieson, $6.75; Hall & Goepel, $37.50; T N Hibben, $17; J B Ferguson, $15; M W Waitt & Co., $15: which were ordered to be paid.

The Secretary reported that Mrs. Gilchrist had been appointed janitor for Johnson street school.

Mr. McMicking asked what had been done about setting out ornamental trees in the school ground.

The chairman said the question had been mentioned to the Minister of Education, but there was no money for the purpose. The government had also been asked for a new ward school for Yates street ward and an additional teacher.

Mr. McMicking said a few trees would not cost much and if put out now would be growing and time would not be lost.

Mr. Walker said the school grounds would never be kept in order until a resident janitor was provided.

The Secretary understood that the government would agree next year to such an appointment.

Board then adjourned.

President Cleveland has issued a proclamation designating Thursday, Nov. 25th, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer.

About two hundred British immigrants arrived in Montreal last week and went to the Northwest.

Never before did the grain trade hang on so long in Kingston, Ont., as this season. Over half a million bushels were handled here last week.

It is reported that Mayor Langelier will oppose Sir Hector Langevin if he offers as a candidate in Quebec Centre. Mr. Ross, it being understood, will not come forward again.

Several French delegates and their wives, who attended the unveiling of the Bartholdi Statue of Liberty, arrived in Montreal on Thursday evening and remained a few days as the city's guests. The majority of them purpose visiting the Northwest before returning home, possibly extending their visit as far as Victoria, B. C.

AMERICAN HAPPENINGS.

A MURDERER'S WORK.

A Crime that Eclipses in Brutality Anything Ever Before Read Of—The Murderer Lynched by a Mob—A Heartrending Affair.

LAWRENCE, Kansas, Nov. 10.—Further particulars of the crime and lynching of Samuel Purple say that last Friday morning his wife arose as usual and prepared breakfast. She then went to awaken her husband, which so enraged him as to incite him to the heinous crime which followed. He sprang violently from bed and seizing his revolver shot her through the body, from which she died at once. Their new born baby was next fired at with the same result. He then shot and killed another one of his children. His sister-in-law, Miss Lawber, was then selected and fired at, the ball passing through her arm and lodging somewhere in the shoulder. As this emptied his revolver he proceeded to load his shot gun in order to complete his bloody work. A slight mistake in this was the only thing that stopped further proceedings. The powder was poured in one barrel and by an error shot into the other. With this he endeavored to blow off the head of another child but there was nothing except powder in the barrel. The child's face was severely burned by the explosion. A heavy blanket was then seized and wound around the suffering child and this was securely wrapped with a heavy wire in the hope that he might accomplish by suffocation what he had failed in by use of the shot gun. The child will recover, although fearfully disfigured about the face. The murderer then mounted a horse, and started across the field towards Marino with the avowed intention of murdering his wife's father and mother. Before he could accomplish this however, the wounded young lady had made her way to the village and notified the inhabitants of what had happened and they had congregated for resistance. Hearing that his plan was frustrated, Purple then hastened to Jetmore and surrendered to the authorities, where he was placed in jail, surrounded by a heavy guard. Last night a mob of 100 men went up quietly to the jail and demanded the prisoner, who was delivered with little ceremony. He was then taken back to the scene of his crime and hanged to a tree. The only one member of the family that escaped serious injury was the murderer's little boy who had hid under his bed when he heard his father coming.

TEN MILE CHAMPION.

The second annual 10-mile walking contest of the V. A. C. took place last night at the club's quarters, Yates street. The only pedestrian who toed the line was Geo. Shade, and he went it alone against time, covering the distance, square walking, in 1 hour, 40 min. 15 sec., which beats Thos. Watson's time for the same distance by 6 min. 45 sec.

THE BAZAAR.

The bazaar in the Theatre Comique was opened to-day under favorable auspices. The hall is beautifully decorated, and to-night promises to be unusually attractive there. A bevy of beautiful young ladies are in attendance to the wants of visitors and purchasers.

OWNED BY MUNICIPALITIES.

In Victoria there are many who have advocated that the gas light should be owned and controlled by the city as well as the water works system. It may not therefore be amiss to give the following particulars relative to the City of Glasgow Corporation Gas Trust, taken from Bradstreet's, which says that the subject is worthy of further elucidation, as Americans are becoming alive to the importance of the question of city ownership of gas-works. With the exception of Edinburgh the municipal corporations in all the large Scotch towns are engaged in gas-making, and it may be safely asserted that in each case the system has worked well, for not only has good and cheap gas been supplied to the citizens, but in some instances profits accruing from gas-making have been used to lighten taxation. In 1869 the corporation of Glasgow obtained parliamentary powers to supply the city with gas. They started with a capital of £534,000, and during the first year's operation the total quanty sold amounted to 1,010,117,000 cubic feet, retailed at 4s. 7d. per 1,000 cubic feet. The capital to carry the works on steadily rose as the operations increased, until 1879 it reached its maximum, namely £1,074,644. Since 1879 the capital has been gradually reduced, and now it stands at £706,000, of which £150,000 consist in redeemed mortgages, so that practically the capital is no larger than when the corporation began gas-making. The works have been increased enormously, the latest returns showing an annual make of 2,066,179,000 cubic feet, retailed at 3s. per 1,000. Briefly put then, the corporation of Glasgow, have, as gas-makers, achieved the following results In 17 years they have reduced the capital to its original amount, doubled their producing power, and reduced the price of gas from 4s. 7d. to 3s. per 1,000 cubic feet. They have also enabled the community on two occasions to expend £5,000 for purposes which otherwise would have necessitated the levying of rates, in other words they have saved the city £10,000. The citizens are also supplied with the use of meters free of charge, while as a rule other corporations and private companies charge for meters 10 per cent. on outlay Glasgow gas is the cheapest in Scotland. Glasgow is in the centre of a rich coal field, and the staple article can be had without any extra charge for transportation. At present gas-making coal can be had in Glasgow at 11s. 6d. per ton. Then, again, Glasgow is alone, in Scotland at least, in using SIEMENS' regenerative system of heating retorts by hot air instead of by fire, and this is believed to be productive of economy in cost. But the real secret of the success of gas-making in Glasgow lies in the fact that no dividend has to be earned for shareholders, the community being supplied with gas at cost price, plus a certain percentage for depreciation of plant and sinking fund to wipe mortgages. And in this respect what is true of Glasgow is also true of other Scotch corporations engaged in gas-making, and if Glasgow has beaten her rivals it is largely due to the fact that she is a large city, with gas works of such a size as admits of economy in cost of production not attainable in smaller towns. City ownership of gas-works has proved a distinct success in Scotland. Scotch electors may be safely depended on to see that municipal financing is sound. In Scotland the interest evinced in general politics is keen, but that taken in municipal affairs is much keener.

Two discoveries of oil have recently been made in the United Kingdom; one at Bronburn, in Scotland, and the other near Hartlepool in Durham. The oil hitherto discovered in the old country has not been in sufficient quantities to affect the trade, but it looks as if there was about to be a change in this respect.

OUR latest advices from Nova Scotia are that business continues to improve and no failures, except of a few saloon-keepers—who can well be spared—have occurred for months. It is expected that a "boom" in building operations will strike Halifax this autumn as among other proposed erections are a new city hall, Dalhousie University, a ladies college and several business premises.

MRS. STEWART'S fortune of $20,000,000 will make fat pickings for the lawyers in the case. It is believed that it will be fiercely contested.

EUROPE'S STANDING ARMIES.

The enormous standing armies of Europe impose tremendous burdens on the people, and interfere more seriously with the growth of wealth than perhaps any other cause. At this time Grrmany has an effective military force of 3,870,000, and it is in her power under the law as it now stands to call out a force of 6,000,000. But the smaller number which we have mentioned are all trained men, familiar with military arms and with military evolutions. If Austria unites with Germany, it will add 1,500,000 more trained soldiers to the German force, so that these two countries alone are capable, on the breaking out of war, to place 5,370,000 fighting men in the field. This in all probability is a far greater force of trained men than it will be possible for Russia and France together to bring forward. The nominal strength of the Russian army, including reserves, is 10,000,000, but the actual fighting force perhaps does not exceed 2,500,000, while France has a force which, according to Gen. Boulanger, can be put into the field within 30 days, of 2,000,000 men, so that Russia and France could at this moment place in the field 4,500,000. The French artillery force is, in fact, said to be the very finest in the world. The French force to-day is more than three times the number under the Emperor, and that of Germany is about four times as strong as it was during the Franco-German war. A war between France and Russia on the one side and Germany and Austria on the other would probably cost $200,000,000 a day; it would need to be of very short duration in order that it might not cause absolute bankruptcy. The Franco-German war lasted a little more than a month. Count Von Moltke left Berlin on the 26th of July, and on the 1st of September following the Emperor Napoleon surrendered at Sedan. The enormous expense that is imposed in these preparations for war in a measure distress the parties who make them.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

M. BARTHOLDI is a native of Alsace, the province which France lost after the German war of 1870-71. Since 1870 he has lived in Paris. His name is pronounced as though it were spelled Bartoldy.

THE 125 steamships plying between the United States and Europe cost $100,000,000, employ 18,750 men, spend $1,000,000 a month for coal, carry 500,000 passengers a year, and earn $22,000,000 for passage money, exclusive of what is paid for freight.

THE total value of imports for home consumption during September, not including British Columbia, were $9,664,372; dutiable, $7,346,565; coin and bullion, $42,360; free goods, $2,275,447. The duty paid amounted to $2,169,529. The imports for the month were $9,193,677, of which home productions were $7,955,484, produce of other countries, $1,237,543, and coin and bullion, $650.

MR. GLADSTONE denies any intention of taking a pension of $10,000. He declares his disapproval of political pensions, but does not deny the statements attributed to MRS. GLADSTONE that his pecuniary condition is uncomfortable. The National and other Liberal clubs are puzzled as to what course they can take which would be acceptable to MR. GLADSTONE in placing him beyond the chance of financial embarrassment. Friends who have been most intimate find MR. GLADSTONE increasingly irritable. He has even quarrelled with and dismissed his physician and close friend, SIR ANDREW CLARKE, on the ground that the doctor domineered too much in insisting upon a certain course of hygiene.

SHOULD the announcement of the purchase of the Inman line of steamers, by American capitalists, prove true, the vessels could not be admitted to register as American craft; they would still have to fly the British flag. The incident of the purchase might cause reasonable men to entertain grave doubts about the value of this restriction of the U. S. navigation laws. Why, it may be asked, do American citizens wish to purchase foreign built vessels? To which the obvious answer would be that they can be bought on better terms than American built steamers; and no reasonable person could fail to draw the conclusion that the refusal to nationalize foreign built vessels, when they become the property of American citizens, is not the way to build up a national merchant marine. But it does not at all follow that the reasonable people are more numerous than the monopolists and their friends, or that a change in the navigation laws would result from one more demonstration of the folly of these laws added to the thousand that have appeared before.

THAT the Donald endowment, made by SIR D. A. SMITH to McGILL University, Montreal opening up a comprehensive course of study to women, supplied a keenly-felt want, is attested by the number who have eagerly embraced the opportunity for the broader and higher culture thus afforded. There are now sixty-eight female undergraduates studying under the conditions of the endowment in connection with the college. Of these, many are in their first or second year; a goodly number in their third, and of these latter the majority propose going through the entire course and becoming candidates for honors. The "sweet girl graduate," says a recent visitor, seems to have suggested long enough the notion of pretty incompetency. To see the girls at their lessons; to note the methodical manner in which the teaching is pursued, the earnest gravity of the fresh young faces as the professor learnedly descants upon experimental physics, and the perfect comprehension of the serious nature of the work in which they are engaged, is to realize that the "sweet girl graduate with golden hair" is much more than a poetical figure. The comprehensive character of the curriculum, and the earnestness with which it appears to be pursued, demand that she be taken seriously.

FORCED APART.

BY W. CLARK RUSSELL.

Author of the "Wreck of the Grosvenor," "A Sailor's Sweetheart," &c.

"Yes, father, I—I think so—I do not know, father."

"To-morrow you and I will go to London," said he. "Make up a little box of things, for this business may keep us. In the morning, at seven, we start. Be in readiness!"

"To-morrow you and I will go to London."

Without another word he left the room.

She leaned against the wall near the window, and her heavy eyelashes drooped over the sorrowful beauty of her eyes. So standing, and with her graceful profile taking a delicate transparency from the light shining through the window, and the soft fulness of her perfect form ripely figured on the white ground of paper that supported her, never more lovely had she looked; and the shimmer of her yellow hair was the trembling of evening sunshine on the water.

Deep grief is always quiescent, and the deepest grief was shrined in this gentle woman. That she was not guiltless only made her sorrow the more moving. She had erred in deceiving father and mother, in privily, without home's blessing, undertaking the sacred obligation of marriage. Yet how hardly was she dealt with! how cruel the interpretation of a deed of faithful love! And why had Cuthbert left her? How bitterly hard that any act of his should be beyond the skill of her heart to construe! Yet her glorious fidelity could not hold him faithless.

In this wise thinking, with an impulsive movement she drew forth her purse and slipped her wedding ring on, kissed it wildly, and, with a quick toss of her hands, fell with her face on the bed, weeping bitterly.

In this posture was she in when her mother came into the room. The poor woman ran to her quickly.

"You have come back, my darling! Where hast thou been all this long time! Jenny, do not cry so—my heart will break if you grieve in this way. Has father been saying unkind things to thee, my pretty? Come, come, it is not all hopeless yet. Truly I believe that Mr. Shaw is thy husband; and be sure, be sure he will return, for no man with his beauty is heartless, and he would not have married thee, Jenny, to leave thee in this way!"

She raised the girl from the bed and led her to a chair, and, kneeling by her, pillowed her head in her bosom.

"Oh, mother, is it not too cruel that I should lose my husband and be doubted by father? To-morrow he means to take me to London to show him the church; for he will not tell me without dragging me a weary journey. And God knows what I shall do when we reach London, for I do not remember the name of the church, nor the street where it stands, and I have told him I was too scared to take notice. And would not a young girl like me be frightened, mother, in that great place, and acting wrongly, although I was with my darling?"

"To-morrow does he take you to London! Oh, what a strange, hard man! Why, all day you will be traveling; and cannot he see that you have no strength?" cried Mrs. Strangfield, rising from her knees; and, with an indignant look, she swept out of the room, and went to her husband, whom she found in the act of quitting the house.

"Michael, I must speak to thee. What are you going to do with Jenny? If you break her heart you will kill us both, and that indeed you are doing!" she cried, shrilly.

With his hand on the latch of the house door he stared at her with a contemptuous sternness, then with a stride made for the parlor, and closed the door upon them both.

"Jane, subdue your voice, and speak to me respectfully. You are the girl's mother, and I will listen to you; but I am her father, and mine is the name she has blasted. Do you heed that? It is Michael Strangfield's daughter whom the people are talking about. Remember this, and now say your mind."

"For shame! for shame! to speak of her as having blasted your name!" replied Mrs. Strangfield, quite unable to control her voice. "Hath she not told you that Mr. Shaw is her husband! The wedding ring is now on her finger—as good a ring as this—and if she be not an honorable wife, then my name is my father's. What! you would take the poor heart to London, when she declares that in her fright she took no notice of the street and church! Would not a stout spirit be scared by what she did, with thee, as her father, to terrify her conscience? Why, myself, when you are heating me with your strong voice, lose my head and know not what I am about. And shall our little wench have stronger brains than her mother—at a time, too, which makes the best of women tremble and keep their eyes down in modesty and awe, though their parents are with them and kind friends to give them heart for the journey? For shame! to doubt her! What think you is her sin?"

"Understand this!" he shouted with fury, and his eyes in a blaze; "if she says she knows not the church wherein she was married, nor can show it me, nor the book wherein their names should be written, nor the man that married them, and hath no more evidence than a ring which a crown piece would buy for any harlot, I'll know her for what she is—and no tears from her, nor insolence from thee, shall change me!"

She held out her hands in the attitude of one fending off an attack.

"Never could I have believed it of thee, Michael!" she said, in a voice of indescribable reproach, and turned to leave him.

"Stay!" he commanded. "Before you go, give me your reason for opposing me."

Too insulted by his words about her child to confront him, she replied:

"She has not the strength to travel to London; and why would you take her there? She tells thee plainly she will not know the church, though she see it, and its name was never mentioned to her by Mr. Shaw."

"You believe her?" he said, with deep-toned sarcasm.

"As I believe in the Lord!" cried the mother, eagerly, turning her swimming eyes upon him.

"You shall credit her if you please, but your faith in her innocence does not purify her. Give me proof of her honesty, and, though I scorn her for her deceit, yet you shall see me use her gently. Am I to stand still under this shame that has come upon me and mine, and make no effort to clear it away, that our light may shine again before men? She does not lack strength to seek her husband, and since noon has she been wandering in the heat. Though we had to travel a thousand miles for proof of her honor, would the journey be too long? Let God forgive her for sending me in my old age from my home, to clear her name of foul suspicion—if it can be done! Go now and repeat my words to her, and let her be in readiness to start with me at the hour I named. No more!" he cried, with a stamp of the foot, holding up his hand. "Too much have you already said. Bid her keep to her room, for I'll not meet her this day."

And passing his wife, he flung open the door and left the house.

"The Lord have mercy upon him, and forgive him his sins," moaned poor Mrs. Strangfield to herself.

Not immediately could she return to Jenny. She had bargained on controlling her husband, by her appeal, from taking the girl to London, and, being defeated, wanted time to recover her heart to meet the poor child.

She must have a good cry before she went to her; and cry she did, heartily thinking all the while of the proud position she might hold as Cuthbert's mother-in-law—the envy of all tattlers—if Michael would only take things quietly and leave her to manage a bit.

An Incident of Tweed's Escape.

The account of the extravagant price paid for human hair to Mr. Dibblee recalls to the mind of that gentleman an incident of Tweed's escape from Ludlow Street jail. Mr. Dibblee had had a wig of superior quality and beauty made to cover the temporary baldness of his son, whose head had just been shaved. The son failed to go for the wig at the hour agreed upon, and the father kept his place of business open later than usual waiting for the bald delinquent. Suddenly an excited man rushed into the store, exclaiming: "Mr. Dibblee, have you a wig that will about fit me?"

"Certainly; what color do you want?"

"Oh, anything! Show me one, quick."

Mr. Dibblee took the wig waiting for his son and handed it to the impatient customer. He hastily tried it on, inquired the price, paid a reckless amount, seized the wig and went away in great haste.

That night the wily Tweed disappeared. The next day New York was all agog with amazement at his bold flight. When it was discovered that he had fled in disguise, Mr. Dibblee thoughtfully put two and two together. He soon after met one of the persons who had been accused of assisting in the flight, and, to verify his suspicions, said to him:

"So you succeeded in getting the old man off?"

"Yes; but we should not have done it if it had not been for your wig."—New York World.

Tenement Life in New York.

Grand street is an overflow of the Bowery at one end, and the outlet of tenement life its whole length. Night and day, at midnight and early morning, the crowds never cease, and scarcely seem to grow less at any hour. The side streets are lined with crumbling, filth-drenched houses, in which live the foreign population. Italians crowd the doorways, women and babies lounge on the curbstones, and the older children play in the gutters.

Here and there a Spaniard stands in the shadow of some post, while his eyes search your face with a baleful gleam that makes you shudder. In the evening, while the street bands play on the corners, French girls dance on the sidewalk, and the narrow street seems to be a playground rather than a thoroughfare, for the people empty themselves into the street even before the sun goes down. Irishmen, Germans, Chinese and banished Russians live here side by side, and mingle day and night in the throng.

But the day brings some curious features to Grand street, a half semblance to an air of respectability, that it possesses at no other time, for after sundown the time for proprieties is over, and all restraint is laid aside.—New York Graphic.

The Hangman at a Masked Ball.

It has come out that at one of the most select private masked balls given at the close of the carnival in Paris one of the most conspicuous guests was a mask habited as a "familiar" of the Spanish inquisition in the sixteenth century. A well known young actress at last satisfied the general curiosity by untying his mask, when it appeared that he was M. Deibler, the Paris executioner. As might be expected, he quitted the salon as soon as his identity was discovered, but he had come on a genuine card of invitation, procured by a lady who, for some whim, wished to give the company an unpleasant surprise.—Cor. London Times.

When Webster Was a Youth.

When Daniel Webster was a youth of 18 in college he wrote to a friend these suggestive words: "I am fully persuaded that our happiness is much at our regulation and that the 'Know thyself' of the Greek philosopher meant no more than rightly to attune and soften our appetites and passions till they should symphonize like the harp of David."—New England Magazine.

A Retaliation on the Pulpit.

A well-known comedian for the past two years has carefully clipped and pasted in scrap books all the reported misdeeds of clergymen that he saw. Now when he hears of a sermon on the immorality of the stage he at once sends the preacher a letter filled with statistics as to the number of preachers in jail, the number that he thinks ought to be in jail, the nature of their sins and crimes, and like pleasing facts.—Chicago Herald.

An American Lady's Novel Dress.

An American lady has had a novel "rose dress" made in Paris. The skirt is composed of 800 roses of different hues, and rosebuds form the bodice, while a veil of tulle, spotted with crystal drops, is thrown over the dress to imitate morning dew.—Chicago Herald.

When Table Manners Are Disclosed.

An English magazine writer makes bold to say that table manners are best "disclosed" by observing how one eats asparagus, oranges, artichokes and grapes.—Inter Ocean.

The new colors in Paris this season are to be "Atlantic Ocean" and "Serpent," the lightest and darkest of greens, and "Partridge" and "Bumblebee," lightest and darkest of browns.

DR. LEDUC'S PERIODICAL PILLS.

These Pills are compounded from the purest drugs, from those only which are known to act upon the generative organs in females. It is a well known fact that a very large proportion of the ills to which females are liable, are the direct results of suppressed or disordered menstruation, and it is necessary therefore that safe and reliable remedy for the cure of these diseases be placed within the reach of every one. Dr. LeDuc's Pills are the oldest, most generally used, and most reliable remedy for the cure of suppressed menstruation, and other uterine diseases, and wherever they have been introduced have driven every other remedy out of the market. They were first introduced into Paris, France, by Dr. LeDuc in 1839, and have so gained the confidence of the public that they have for years been the standing remedy in every household. —Hereafter the skating rink will be open for skating every Saturday. The rink can be had for balls, sporting entertainments, &c., on any other day or night.

—The Vancouverites are beginning an active opposition to the Chinese. The Knights of Labor have passed strong resolutions against them and a general system of boycotting will be inaugurated.

—The Portland Roller Mills flour was awarded the first gold medal at the Mechanics Fair, October 16th, at Portland, Oregon, for superiority against all other Oregon flours.

—If there is a nuisance existing it is the flooding of the post office with Hamburg lottery circulars. Our citizens are getting accustomed to it, however, as there seems to be no remedy for the nuisance.

—Those who wish to send their photos to the "old country" in time for Xmas, would do well to sit now and avoid the Xmas rush. HALL & LOWE, Photographers, Government St.

—Hall & Quackenbush, Vancouver, B. C. have the most complete list of business and suburban properties for sale at the terminus of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Price and terms to suit all parties. Inquiries by mail promptly answered. References.

—The Union Debating Society hold forth to-night in the hall on Quadra street. The interesting subject to be discussed is, "Which is the more destructive, fire or water?" Mr. Willis Bond has the fire side [no pun here] and his opponent is Mr. White, a foe worthy of Willis' steel. The public are cordially invited.

—In reply to a letter from the city clerk of Vancouver, enquiring if the C. P. R. would entertain an offer to exempt from taxation the work-shops, round-house, yards, &c., provided they were located on the north side of False Creek, Mr. H. Abbott replied that he thought such an offer would be favorably entertained.

—Some days ago we copied a few lines from the Vancouver News about some mammoth timber that was being cut on the inlet for the King of the Cannibal Islands, or the Emperor of China, but it now appears that the information was inaccurate to the extent that it was wholly untrue. Is it because there is a goose on the News that the boys like to "stuff" it so often?

—The Columbian boasts that the dispatches received by it on Monday, containing 3,515 words, were the most extensive ever received by any paper in British Columbia. Modesty is certainly not one of the failings of our mainland contemporary. The dispatches are not stolen from the TIMES and Colonist, but through the connivance of the telegraph company, or associated press, they are picked off when in transitu and at a merely nominal cost. In other words, to the enterprise of the Victoria papers is due the fact that dispatches are received in New Westminster at all. Under these circumstances there is no room for boasting.

It is understood that an effort is to be made to organized a Commercial Travelers' Association for British Columbia, with headquarters in this city, where there are already between thirty and forty members of the parent association in the east. Each of the other provinces, excepting, perhaps, Prince Edward Island, has a branch association, and the importance to which the trade and commerce of this city has attained encourages many of those connected with our trading houses to take this important step. The Winnipeg organization embraces about 40 members, and is found to be a very useful institution to the mercantile community. The accumulated funds of the Canada Commercial Travelers' Association now amount to close upon $100,000, which is invested in undoubted securities for the benefit of its members, and in which the B. C. branch will be participants. Only bona fide traders can join. An entrance fee will be charged, after which the annual charges will be small. Each member's life is insured on the mutual plan, so that in the event of death those left behind receive a legacy of from $1,200 upwards, according to the sum paid into the fund. Travelers, as a further protection, are granted privileges on their tickets by all transportation companies and hotels, such as none others are entitled to or receive. In a few days it is expected definite announcements will be made concerning the movement.

FATAL ACCIDENT.

Henry W. Bateson, a young man employed in the blacksmith shop of the C. P. R. at Yale, was accidentally shot at Harrison swing bridge on Sunday last. Bateson, Henry Schofield and C. Atherton left Yale on Sunday morning for Harrison river on a shooting expedition. At the swing bridge, when Atherton was in the act of firing, Bateson spoke to him which caused Atherton to turn round. As he did so, his gun exploded, and the contents entered the stomach of Bateson. Assistance was procured and the wounded man conveyed to the train, but before Hope was reached he was a corpse. Mr. Wise did not deem an inquest necessary. Bateson leaves a wife and three children.

The funeral of the deceased took place at Yale on Tuesday, and was largely attended by sympathizing citizens. Atherton, in whose hands the weapon was when it discharged the fatal shot, is a clerk in Mr. Johnston's store, and feels keenly the position the unfortunate accident has placed the family of the deceased in, for it is known that they are not as well provided for as it could be wished for. The children are young and helpless.

EIGHTEEN INCHES OF LAND.

The Smithe Government some time ago transferred to the city of Vancouver a lot for a fire hall. Plans were prepared and a building erected, and then the Government notified the Council that they had given Mr. Byrne 18 inches of said lot in lieu of the same amount of land on the other side of his lot. The Mayor and Councillors, at the last meeting, denounced the action of the Government in pretty strong terms, and adopted a resolution protesting against it. Taking an 18-inch slice off the edge of the lot will, it is said, obscure the light of the fire hall and leave no room for a passage way. The good people of Vancouver are new as yet to our local politicians, but they will learn in a very short time that the Smithe ring can be guilty of some very extraordinary administrative blunders.

ONLY 10,000.

According to the Dominion Government returns, the total immigration into Manitoba and the Northwest for the past year has been 10,000. Some years ago, in the House of Commons, Sir John allowed his imagination to run riot, and he predicted that 100,000 settlers would annually locate in the Northwest. His object was to carry his railway legislation, and it succeeded. But every person knew at the time that Sir John was out-Tuppering Tupper as a "stretcher." The premier's predictions in this connection were similar to the nonsense uttered by the Provincial Secretary about the immediate future value of the Government lands at English Bay. Both gentlemen told unconscionable falsehoods.

THE PROTESTANT ORPHANAGE.

Messrs. A. A. Green and James Hutcheson are soliciting subscriptions for this very deserving institution to-day amongst our business men and others. With the approach of cold weather the wants of the little waifs become numerous and urgent. It is to be hoped the appeals being made by the gentlemen named will be generously responded to by our citizens. Such as may not be called upon will please leave their contributions with Mr. James Hutcheson, of the White House, who is Treasurer for the institution.

A CHANCE TO BUY CHEAPLY.

Mr. George Byrnes, auctioneer, will commence at 10 o'clock to-morrow to sell by auction the furniture, comprising valuable drawing room and dining sets, also glassware and culinary utensils, at the residence of Mr. Edgar Marvin, near the Convent. The list of articles is long and needs a catalogue to thoroughly understand what is to be offered. Mr. Marvin's house bears the reputation of being handsomely furnished, and as the sale is by auction, the highest bidder can be appeased in his wants.

IT IS ILLEGAL.

A correspondent draws our attention to the fact that the post office here and doubtless elsewhere throughout the Dominion, has been flooded with circulars relating to a "new great money lottery" of the city of Hamburg, and purporting to be granted by the German government, and asks if it is not illegal to circulate such matter through the post office? We are of the opinion that the post masters can destroy all such circulars, as their circulation through the Canadian postoffices is strictly prohibited.

AN ENTERPRISING FIRM.

The firm of Boncherat & Co., of this city, stands highly with merchants and traders in this city and province. This firm believes in judicious advertising, making known what they have for sale, and together with liberal terms offered purchasers, transact a large business. They now offer for sale ex ships Glenlyon, Archer &c., groceries and fine wines, champagnes, liqueurs, &c.

FOR THE HOLIDAYS.

Mr. Richard Carr, Wharf street, has just received a large stock of this season's crop of raisins, currants, canned peel, nuts and a general assortment of wines and liquors, all of which are fresh and true to their brands and will be sold at the lowest rates. Those desiring to lay in their holiday season stock should call early.

British Columbia Fruit at the Colonial Exhibition—What Experts Say of It.

Mr. H. C. Beeton, Agent General for British Columbia in London, has written to Mr. John Jessop, Dominion Immigration Agent in this city, notifying him of the safe arrival of the fruit sent from this Province to the Colonial Exhibition and what was thought of it by Mr. Starr, who has charge of the fruit department of Canada's exhibit. Mr. Beeton evidently was quite jubilant over the excellence of British Columbia's contribution, and the favorable impression it made on the numerous visitors who beheld it. He encloses a letter from Mr. Starr, in which that gentleman states that on the Tuesday and Wednesday previous to his writing they had received 350 cases of fruit and vegetables from Canada, which as soon as the Royal Horticultural Society removed its show from the conservatory in the exhibition building, were placed in position. Mr. Starr and his staff worked all night Thursday, and on Friday morning had no less than 2,200 plates of fruit on one long table devoted exclusively to the display of the vegetables, with that many more to open. The sight was a glorious one and took the admiring visitors entirely by surprise. Mr. Starr says that British Columbia carried of the palm for size in fruit and likewise in some of the vegetables, which were simply immense and of excellent quality.

They report operations as comparatively quiet at that camp. Miners have begun working the benches with fair prospects of making good pay. Mr. A. E. Imrie, who returned to the city last night from Winnipeg, whither he had accompanied his wife and family on their way to Detroit, where they will reside for the winter, has resigned the position of general agent for the Life Assurance Company in this province. Mr. Richard Angus, eldest son of Mr. James Angus, of this city, was a passenger by the Inlet steamer last evening, having come direct to Victoria from Manchester, England. He states that in the neighborhood of Winnipeg that considerable snow was passed, but there was no sleighing. OUR MAYOR ABROAD.

Amongst the names of the distinguished personages who were present at the Halloween entertainment given by the Montreal Caledonian Society we observe that of our worthy Mayor. The programme for the evening consisted of addresses by eminent men such as Col. Stevenson one of Montreal's leal hearted Scoties, the Hon. J. S. D. Thompson, Minister of Justice, and others. It was a grand affair, as are all the entertainments gotten up under the auspices of this society. The dancing in costume was one of the features of the evening, completely captivating Victoria's chief magistrate. After the programme had been finished the chairman called upon their Worships Mayor Beaugrand of Montreal and Fell of Victoria, B. C., for addresses, which they readily assented to, followed by Dr. Anderson, the U. S. Consul General for Canada. It is evident Mayor Fell's portly proportions make him a noted figure in the east. On his return he will have much to tell of the greatness he has seen in that section of Canada.

DECLARED OFF.

A reporter of the Post-Intelligencer called at the Washington Steamboat Company's office to enquire how the negotiations looking to the sale of the O. R. & N. Co.'s steamers to the Washington Company were progressing. He was informed by Mr. Jacobs that all negotiations had been suspended, owing to the fact that the O. R. & N. Co. ask too much for certain of its steamers.

CAUSE OF THE JOCKEY'S DEATH.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—At the inquest in the case of Fred Archer to-day, it was proved that Archer had sustained no losses in betting and that the cause of his derangement was typhoid fever, aggravated by weakness due to the restricted regime which he had adopted in order to reduce his weight. A verdict of suicide while insane was rendered. It is reported that Archer leaves £250,000.

FIRST OF THE SEASON.

Mr. G. Crowther, engraver, Fort street, has the honor of being the first to lay on our table a counting house calendar for 1887. It is a fine specimen of lithography. The subject of the engraving is "Writing Home," in which a weather beaten warrior asks a comrade, who is a drummer, to "Tell the old lady now we captured this 'ere flag, Jim."
